With this guide, you’ll have access to key information about 2,000 grant-making charities, each with the potential to give £40,000 a year or more.

You’ll have the information you need to gain a share of around £4 billion, with entries outlining grant-makers’ selection criteria, how to apply and what kinds of projects they fund.

You’ll be able to go right to the most relevant funders thanks to the extensive indexes. Grant-makers can be distinguished by geographical area, field of interest, type of beneficiary and type of grant available.

Who should buy this book?
This is the fundraiser’s key information source. No charity – big or small – should be without a copy. You’ll find this a vital source of funding information including funders you might not have known existed.

Selling Points
With information sourced from the organisations themselves, this is the most up-to-date guide to grant-makers. The guide contains:

- Concise information and contact details for each funder
- Sensibly organised indexes
- Descriptions of project types that can be funded, and those that don't qualify
- Amounts of total funding available from each grant-maker
- A sample of recent beneficiaries for guidance as to the projects funded

What they said
‘So great fundraising, needs great fundraisers, but like other crafts, they also need the best tools and The Directory of Grant Making Trusts is a key part of any fundraiser’s toolkit.’

Paul Farthing, MInstF, Director of Fundraising, NSPCC [from the Foreword]

‘The Directory of Grant Making Trusts has been extremely useful to us this year, providing information on trusts that we have not found elsewhere. Within three weeks of sending off an application we received grant that covered the cost of the investment and more.’

Frances Fielding, British Wireless for the Blind Fund
